

Nancy Gordon

Biography: Officially represented by Cerulean Arts Gallery & Studio in Philadelphia, Nancy Gordon has had the pleasure of a long and meandering career. She majored in Fashion Design at Moore College of Art and Design. Her career and life took her on a different path, and she began to explore painting. Nancy enjoys taking classes at Fleisher Art Memorial, PAFA, and Wayne Art Center. She has participated in countless juried shows across the Northeast and has won awards in figurative paintings.

Artist Statement:

- I love color and movement.
- Everything stems from the layers of color. The result is a realistic abstraction of nature.
- As a lover of nature, birds, fish, insects, people or trees swaying in the breeze are the foundation of my work.
- My painting is based on intuition and trusting my feelings.
- My passion is expressed by using colors that mirror my soul.
- Through my process of painting, I discovered that expressing joy is very important due to that fact that I see so much suffering in the world.
- The joy of nature centers me.
- Experimentation fuels me-soft one moment / harsh the next. I use brush, palette knife and collage to reach my goals.
- Just like with snowflakes... my work is never the same twice.
- "I love the Impressionists. They were the first to rebel against the traditional model of realism, giving all who followed permission to break the rules."